USELESS COWBOY

By ALAN Le MAY W.N.U. SERVICE

THE STORY THUS FAR: Melody Jones and George Fury had ridden into Payneville. Melody was mistaken for the outlaw, Monte Jarrad. Monte's girl, Cherry, in trying to save Monte and later Melody, got them involved in the murder of Luke Packer, the insurance cop. Melody found Monte at the farm, where Cherry soon returned with the wounded Fury. Monte's men rode up, hard pressed by the posse, and ran into the house, where Melody, Cherry and Fury were in the barn when the battle started. Melody walked out of the barn, called Monte and started to shoot it out with him. Monte fell dead. The battle was over and Melody was taken into town but soon released. He returned to Fury and Cherry.

CHAPTER XIX

"I had hopes for you, for a while," George said. "You looked pretty good around here, once, for a couple of minutes. When first you let yourself get sucked in here, on the theory you could collect the reward—hilt of the toughest killer since Billy the Kid—whup his whole gang, probably—take him single-handed, seemingly—I knowed you was crazy. But I admit there was a minute here when you near had me fooled. I come mighty near thinkin' you knowed what you was up to, there, once."

Melody was interested. "When was this?"

"When you walked out and fit it out with him—and shot him down!"

"Who? Me?"

"How you ever done it—that part they's no answer to," George said. "It'll mystify me in my grave."

"Only I never," Melody said somberly.

"Never what?"

"I never shot him, George."

"I see," George said, with bitter irony. "You never killed him. He faibed, and struck his head. The bullet you put through him never had nothing to do with it!"

Melody looked at George very queerly. "I kind of thought to ask you a question, George. But this answers it, I guess. Maybe I already knew the answer. Only, I did kind of hope—You sure you didn't shoot him, George? Because you crawled to the door, and you—"

"Crawled to the door," George mimicked him angrily. "I don't crawl for nobody, you hear? I stood up and walked like a human bean! Only I tripped. It knocked the wind out of me, or somethin', and I dropped her. Don't you even know when you shoot a feller?"

"I—I don't feel good," Melody said. "Of course, I really knowed; but—I guess I still kind of hoped—"

"What the hell's the matter with yew?"

Melody looked at him with pity. "The shot come from behind me. I even heard the lead. I reckon the next silliness, I'm supposed to think she went off when you dropped her, and hit dead center by accident. Fine carbine, you had, with its own eyes and everything. I never hear sech—" He stopped. "Now what's the matter?"

A new queer light had come into George's face. "Avery!" he said.

"What?"

"It comes back to me now. As I fell down, somebody taken and grabbed the carbine up. Avery must—" He checked abruptly, and looked even stranger. "Avery was knocked out," he said weakly, watching Melody.

They looked at each other quite a while. Melody's face had reached a low of depression such as George had never seen in it before. It made him look older; almost, George thought, as if he had sease.

"Don't look like that," George said at last. "You offer be glad. You offer be proud of her. If it was me, I'd take it for the best good news I ever see come to you yet. The only good news," he corrected. "I throw in," Melody said.

"What?"

"You can't blame her. She knowed him long before she ever knowed me."

It took a long time for that to soak in upon George, so that he realized what Melody meant. Even after all his long miles with Melody, he found it hard to believe this final thing.

"I offer git up and whup yew," George's voice was low, but it shook. "I give yew up. Git out of my sight! I don't want to ever see yew no more. Melody, I mean it."

"All right, George."

Melody got together such of his few things as were still rattling around the ranch house. He could not find at all some of the things he thought he remembered having had, such as one-half pair of spurs, and his horsehair tie rope. He finally found his other saddle blanket, though, rolled up under George Fury's head. "Plex," George, kin I have that?" When George smoked and ignored him he lifted George's head by the hair, and took the blanket anyway, while George refused to notice.

Cherry was brushing her hair, just as he had seen her do the night she had found him asleep in her bed. She glanced over her shoulder at him, and said, "Hi." And there was a considerable silence while Melody stood awkwardly in the door and nothing happened.

"I don't see why you need him, right away," she said at last.

"I got to get a job. Most likely I got to travel some to get it—don't seem like I'm popular around here no more. But I got to get some money to send back to George. He'll need it, until he can work."

"He might never, you know."

"Well, then, he'll need the money all the worse."

"You know," Cherry said, not looking at him, "the country around here would be a wonderful place to start a little cattle stand. It's thin, but there's plenty of it. The Cottons only want the valley bottom. And it isn't the country's fault that Fever Crick wastes all his time running wild horses."

"I—I often thought of that."

"In a few years," Cherry said gravely, "a couple of people could have about anything, if they weren't afraid of work."

"Sure."

She was silent, and waited for what he would say.

From the lean-to at the other side of the house came George Fury's faint yell: "Cherry, if yew knissed him with it, hit him agin!"

"Heck," Melody said. He sat looking at the broken lamp, and the ribbon in his hand, and turning turkey red.

Cherry seemed to notice the ribbon more than the lamp. "You can have that, if you want it," she said. "You don't need to steal things from me. Couldn't you ask?"

Wordless, Melody wadded up the ribbon and crammed it into his pocket. Then, becoming aware of what he was doing, he hastily pulled it out again, snapped it straight, and dropped it on the bed.

"I swear," he said honestly, "I don't know how come I done that."

He stood up. "I'll send you another lamp," he said, "out of my first pay."

"You're really on your way," she said, as if she didn't believe it. "What?"

She subsided, looking more discouraged than he had ever seen her. "Let it go. . . I suppose you'll let George know where he can find you?"

"We ain't speakin'."

"But you said—"

"I'll support him while he needs it. I'll do just that one thing more. But beyond that we're done. George wants it that way, Cherry. I reckon so do I."

She looked at him a long time then, disconcertingly, while he stood turning his hat round and round in his hands. He didn't know exactly how to get out of there, now that he had no more to say.

"I think," Cherry said surprisingly, "you're the hardest man I've ever known."

"Who? Me?"

"You're hard like a rock drill, or a bronze. You're so hard you don't even know you're hard."

"Oh, well, shucks, now—"

"How on earth did you manage to break with George?"

Melody shifted uncomfortably, deeply embarrassed. He would have said he didn't know, except that George would be staying on there.

"Well," Melody said, "he—he-I guess I got to tell you something, Cherry. . . George remembers, now. He remembers who—who picked that carbine up, and shot it, when—when I was fighting Monte."

Cherry winced as if a quirt had sung in her face, but steadied instantly. She considered for a long moment, with her eyes averted.

"I did," she said at last.

"Yup, sure," Melody said. "We know that, now."

Cherry talked swiftly, in a panic. "Can't he see—can't anybody see—I had to try to—I couldn't help—"

"Cherry," he said slowly, "you ain't got any better friend than George."

But you just said you quarreled because—

He met her almost frantically glassy stare with steady eyes. "George is a sentimental old guy. He don't see things very clear, any more."

Every trace of expression in Cherry's face was crossed off.

"It's—it's you who hates me for that?"

"Nobody hates you, Cherry."

She dropped her chin, and turned her face away from him.

"I want you to know something," Melody said. "If a feller gets a bullet patted at him, it's liable to be his own damn fault. Even if it comes from the last place he would rightfully expect it to come from."

She only looked at him.

"Don't feel like that," Melody said. "It ain't fair or right for a man to expect too much of people. If a feller gets to thinking there's some one person he can trust, that's a chance he's taking. And if later she feels called on to take a shot at him, he can't blame nobody but hisself if he's surprised."

This was so far from anything Cherry had looked forward to, or planned, that at first she could not speak. Her eyelids winked fast as she stared hard at the hairbrush.

He turned away; and she didn't stop him as he wandered to the door. But he hesitated, feeling unhappy and incomplete.

"George is funny," he said. "Facts hurt George. He can't bring hisself to stand for 'em. There ain't a man in the world wouldn't give the last drop of his blood for a gal that done for him what you tried to do for Monte. But maybe you'd better let George think what he wants. He's daid set that you was shootin' at Monte."

He paused. Then, as she stared at him, he said, diffidently, "some way it makes him mad to have me realize that you was only trying to kill me."

Cherry dropped the hairbrush, but it landed on its bristles, without sound; and Melody did not see it, because he was getting out of there now, at his own slow pace.

"Someday," he said to himself, "you'll be an old man, past use for nothin'. And suppose then word comes in, some way, so's we know then that George was right. Suppose we find out, some way, she really shot at Monte. Then you'll set there plucking cactus spines. You'll set there a long time."

He stood halfway up, hitching his chap belt, but sat down again. "She would of give me some sign," he suggested to himself uncertainly. "She would of said something. She would of told me." He reached down for his soogans.

But he never picked them up. He stopped in his tracks, shocked out of motion by the impression that Harry Henshaw, ignorant of whistles, had turned and whistled at him. Then, as he stared at the dozing pony, Cherry spoke behind him.

"No wonder he doesn't come," she said.

He jumped, and spun around. "What? Oh, it's you."

"Yes," Cherry said. "That whistle can't be any good. You don't even answer to it yourself."

"Who? Me?" Melody was utterly befuddled, now. "Cherry, I swear, it seems like he offer come. I think a fur piece, figuring up that whistle. That there is the most come-hither whistle a man can think up, I do believe."

"Is it?" Cherry looked him square in the eye, and whistled at him.

The doggonedest thing of all happened then. Harry Henshaw came up and stood nearby, looking self-conscious.

JOAN EDWARDS has it to her credit that she wasn't discovered by her uncle, the star-maker, Gus Edwards, but got to the top by herself. But the gay young star of "The Hit Parade" did want her uncle to be present at one of her broadcasts, so she arranged to go to the Coast for some guest performances, and have her uncle, who has been ill for so long, brought to one of them. Joan as the mother of lovely young Judy Ann, aged 1½, is a different person from the talented singer and pianist the public knows; she'd like to spend a lot more time with that young lady if she could. But she's tied to "The Hit Parade" for years to come.

It's nothing new for Director Mitchell Leisen to lend his own belongings as props for pictures. He did it for the eighth time for "Masquerade in Mexico," when Dorothy Lamour had to be shown with a lot of smart luggage. The property department couldn't supply matched bags, wardrobe cases and a steamer trunk—so you'll see Dorothy surrounded by Mr. Leisen's very expensive traveling kit.

Alexis Smith wound up her role in "The Two Mrs. Carrills" at Warner Bros. on a Saturday afternoon, and immediately walked across the studio lot to begin work in "Night and Day," based on the life and music of Cole Porter; she's seen as Mrs. Porter.

For three years Metro has been grooming Jacqueline White for big things; she was signed up right out of college, and has had just one picture role, in "Song of Russia." She gets her first big role in "The Yearling," playing opposite Gregory Peck.

"Queen for a Day," the Cinderella show aired daily over Mutual, will become a picture; Ed Golden's bought the film rights, and it will be released through United Artists. In case you haven't heard the show, it's the one on which a queen for a day is chosen from the studio audience, and then is given her every wish. In the picture the Queen will probably drop in on various movie stars.

Two famous mysteries, written in the last century, will reach the screen by way of the Warner Bros. studio. They're by Wilkie Collins. One is "Woman in White," the other is "The Moonstone"—and they're better than many a modern whodunit.

Rise Stevens takes another step up the ladder with the new radio show of hers that is the summer replacement for "Information Please." And it's a novel idea to have a different musical director each week, from one of the leading motion picture companies.

Several weeks ago Lulu McCannell, feminine star of the hilarious "It Pays to Be Ignorant," was ordered to a hospital by her doctor. She was a good patient till Friday came; then she defied doctors and nurses, got up and dressed, and was off to the studio for her broadcast. Like the show's other stars, she's an old-timer in the theater. "When I can't get to the broadcast, I'll be dead," she told Tom Howard.

Weary apartment seekers in Hollywood rejoiced when a sign "Apartment for Rent," was hung outside one of the buildings of the Monogram studio that faces the street. Gale Storm was to do a scene for "The Gay Nineties," inspecting the sign—but before camera crews could get there the street was so crowded that it took half an hour for an assistant director to convince them that it was just for a picture.

ODDS AND ENDS—Jane Withers will probably have her own air show in the fall, a show for young people. . . . Alice Faye may abandon movies completely, and do an air show with her husband, Phil Harris. . . . Hi Brown, producer-director of "Inner Sanctum," has directed over 15,000 broadcasts, and during one year had 35 of his own shows on the air. . . . The Ray Bolger show, replacing the Jimmy Durante-Garry Moore one, has a staggering lineup of stars signed for the summer and early fall. . . . Judy Canova's husband left for overseas when their baby was two weeks old—but the proud parents drank a toast to the baby.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

If you wish to make an extra hole in a strap and haven't the necessary belt punch, drill the hole with brace and drill.

By adding a pinch of salt to the white of an egg it will beat to a stiff froth more quickly.

After washing blankets rinse them in water in which a block of camphor has been dissolved. They can then be stored without fear of attack by moths.

If you do not have time to arrange garden flowers the minute they are cut, place them in a bucket of water and let them remain there until you are ready to arrange them in their vases or bowls.

To have your sewing machine in top running condition, keep it clean and lintless. Oil it occasionally. To avoid gumming, buy special oil from your sewing machine shop. Put just one drop at each oil hole and on moving parts where there is friction.

A stiff steel brush will remove hardened earth from hoses, rakes and spades. This, followed with steel wool and a final wiping with an oily rag, will usually keep garden tools from rusting.

Follow Through

Do you believe working people have a right to organize and bargain as a group for their general betterment? Do you believe a man who has saved some money has a right to invest it in any business he likes and to operate that business, trying to make a reasonable profit? Do you believe that big-volume production at low cost is the key to good pay? My answer is yes, to all three questions.

If you agree, you subscribe to the fundamentals of the Labor-Management Charter. It was signed in Washington last March 28 by William Green for the American Federation of Labor, Eric Johnson for the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Phil Murray for the Congress of Industrial Organizations. It is a powerful document, able (if carried out) to do the world more good than the famous Atlantic Charter.

Nothing Original

People who work surely have rights. Open competition is certainly fair. Economy of time and effort yields positive rewards. These ideas are not original. They are old and time-tested principles. All of them stand out clearly in the teachings of Jesus and of many great men who have lived and enriched the world more recently. They appear in the Labor-Management Charter.

Besides declaring the rights of labor, the fairness of competition and the dividends of economy, the Labor-Management Charter contains two vital pledges: (1) To settle industrial disputes peacefully—no strikes, no violence, no lockouts, no trickery, and (2) To support a sound economic system in America—expanding foreign trade and an enduring peace. Both are perfectly sound.

Big Responsibility

Being the richest and strongest nation in the world, the United States has a serious responsibility. It is greater than ever now, with a global war to finish and the world to be set in order. Miss Columbia must point the way and she stands at the crossroads. America's choice will determine which way the whole world goes: to peace and plenty or to poverty and oppression.

Of the 200 billion people who have lived on earth, not more than 2% could call their souls their own. The way of the world has always been oppression and it still is. Now especially the trend is toward dictatorship. Not 20% of the people now living ever dreamed of freedom and prosperity like we enjoy, but America is in actual danger of being carried with the political tide.

Jobs and Markets

The Labor-Management Charter points the right way toward freedom of faith, security of ownership, and liberty in self-government. Like any guide-post it is powerless in itself, useful only if it is followed. If followed, however, it indicates an orderly transition from war to victory in peace and prosperity. If it is ignored, our alternate course leads to economic war, government by edict, lower wages, and less of the things people want.

The system of open competition in enterprise made America the world's most influential nation and kept it in the forefront of human progress for 170 years. A recent survey shows that conservative business men are ready, if they have a chance, to offer more than one job per available worker after the war. For full employment, good pay, ready markets and active business, let's follow through with the Labor-Management Charter.

20 major U. S. oil fields, each with reserves in excess of 100,000,000 barrels, are estimated to contain 2,500,000,000 bbl. of oil, or 45 per cent of the national total, of more than 20,000,000,000 bbl.

ANSWERED BY THE VOICE OF PROPHECY INTERNATIONAL BIBLE BROADCASTERS

Question—Does it make any difference what I do as long as I have faith in my Lord?

Answer—Read all of the second chapter of James. Verse 17 says, "Even so faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being alone."

Q.—Did Christ die for one particular nation or race of men?

A.—But we see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honor; that He by the grace of God should taste death for every man." Hebrews 2:9.

Q.—Why did Cain kill Abel?

A.—The answer is in 1 John 3:12: "Not as Cain, who was of that wicked one, and slew his brother. And wherefore slew he him? Because his own works were evil, and his brother's righteous."

Q.—How can I prove that the angels are the spirits of the dead?

A.—Angels existed before anyone ever died, therefore they cannot be the spirits of the dead. (Genesis 32:1) God placed cherubim (angels) at the gate of the garden of Eden. See also Job 38:4, 6.

Q.—How can I get more faith?

A.—By reading God's Word. Romans 10:17: "So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God." Also by asking God for it. Luke 11:13: "And the apostles said unto the Lord, Increase our faith."

Q.—Who was the first sinner?

A.—He that committed sin first of the devil; for the devil sinneth from the beginning. For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that He might destroy the works of the devil." 1 John 3:8. Read also Ezekiel 28:15.

Q.—Why did God-ahor the nations which occupied the land of Canaan before Israel?

A.—In Leviticus 20:23, we read: "And ye shall not walk in the manners of the nation, which I cast out before you: for they committed all these things, and therefore I abhorred them." "These things" here referred to, have just been mentioned in preceding passages and include dishonoring parents (verse 9); adultery (verse 10); profaning God's name (Leviticus 19:21); stealing (verse 11); breaking the Sabbath (verse 30), etc.

More than half of the 55 - gal oil drums used by the Quartermaster Corps in shipping petroleum products overseas and to posts, camps, and stations in this country during 1944 were reclaimed drums which had already been used one or more times for a similar purpose. This saved more than 1,000,000 drums, a cash saving of $10,000,000 many tons of steel and millions of man-hours of labor.

Proved crude oil reserves of the U. S. are estimated at in excess of 20 million barrels; proved natural gas reserves amount to about 114 trillion cubic feet.

What it took almost 70 years to accomplish with natural rubber, American scientists, engineers and production men have achieved in 5 years with synthetic rubber; 85 percent of the overall volume of rubber this country is now using is synthetic.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

More and more of the prodigals down there in Congress are in need of a tap on the shoulder. The latest outburst is where 2 of the boys are cookin' up a "guaranteed adequate diet." With their new scheme, if you have a family of 4 you get 60 dollars worth of food coupons for 40 per cent of your wages.

But if some tired type of person chooses to work only one day a week, and maybe make 40 bucks a month, then his 60 dollars in coupons would cost only 16 dollars. Sound good. But since he won't know how to advance how much, if any he will wait until the end of the month for his coupons and will eat nothing at all for 30 days.

And if a diet is to be adequate, Director of the Diet Dept. will tell us what to eat. And if you happen to like carrots but don't like spinach, and the Director does like spinach, then you eat spinach, too.

For grown-up men in Congress to cook up such a concoction shows that more people should start writing post-cards. Most all the old boys there in Potomac-land can read pretty good. Tell 'em to act their age—or come on home. They will survive.

Yours with the low down,

TOKYO KNEW ABOUT THE B-29 BEFORE YOU DID

Captured evidence reveals that the Japs knew the story six months before most Americans knew it existed

In far-away Burma, early in 1944—long before the B-29 became front-page news at home—long before our own forces in China and India were notified to expect this great super-bomber—came news of its existence—uncomfortably accurate technical description—positive facts as to proposed bases... from the JAPS. It was all in an official bulletin of the Japanese Army found among the papers captured in a Jap stronghold in Burma.

This was not information obtained by the enemy through air reconnaissance or the capture of prisoners or official documents in combat—it was a leak of supersecret information right out of this country, transmitted directly to the High Command in Tokyo.

What did Tokyo do with this information? What action did they take?

What did it mean to our Chinese allies and our own troops? It is significant that shortly after they obtained this information the Japs mounted a new offensive in China and set out to capture the specially constructed air fields built by hand by the Chinese people for the heavy B-29s. Months of laborious, back-breaking labor of thousands of Chinese workers were sacrificed by demolition in a heart-breaking few hours in the retreat before the onslaught of the attacking Japanese. Stores of precious gasoline—parts—and other scarce hard-to-get stores flown at great risk over the famous "Hump" were put to the torch. A terrific set-back—an almost unendurable discouragement.

We must keep our secrets. The best way is to keep quiet.

AS WE CLOSE IN FOR THE KNOCKOUT—

KEEP THE JAPS IN THE DARK!

Kathleen Norris Says:

Many Wives Aid the Enemy

Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features.

"Mollie," she says, "is a perfectly good girl, but she has her friends at the house all the time, who are laughing and making candy and going to afternoon movies."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THINGS have just been running down at home since Ted and Larry went away to war," whined a woman to me in the market the other day. "You see," she went on, "Larry was making good money and he helped out a lot, and by this time I suppose Ted would have been a wage-earner, too. Now with just Betty and Dad at home, we are the most dismal group you can imagine, and the money trouble doesn't help to console us! I can't wait to have the boys get back, when we can get all straightened out, pay our debts and start over."

I looked at this woman in amazement. She loves her sons; she will grieve bitterly if either is taken by war. And yet she could stand there and tell me, with a sort of melancholy pride, that the welcome provided for the boys of the family is going to be complaints, debts, anxieties, responsibilities—no heartening assurance of the family's solvency and security, no encouraging plans for rest and recuperation—just the old tedious complaining and protesting against the general injustices of fate.

Another woman wrote to her son that she and his grandmother, who have been living together, have had so serious a disagreement that they are going to law about it. She asks him to answer several questions by return mail: Does he remember his grandmother saying that his mother had been mixed up in an unsavory love affair before her marriage; will he testify that his grandmother often called his mother ugly names, and so on.

The lonely son, wasting the best years of his life in the bleak Aleutians, must sit down and handle the quarrels of the two undisciplined women.

Runs Down His Wife. Another woman writes her son disparaging letters about his wife. Mollie, she says, is a perfectly good girl, but she has friends at the house all the time who are laughing and making candy and going to afternoon movies, and the mother-in-law thinks it is a shame to have Bob's money wasted that way.

And again a homesick man must open letters that fill his heart with bitterness and despair.

As for the "dear John" letters—these have become a recognized aid to the enemy! The "dear John" letter is a missile that opens with the shattering phrase, "I have been thinking of us and our married life, and I believe we would both be happier if we were to obtain a divorce and make a fresh start with other mates."

Don't smile at this and dismiss it as only an occasional thing. It is a very real and desperate menace to the morale and peace of mind of our fighting boys. Hundreds and hundreds of these cruel notes go forth daily, and the effect they have on a man whose nerves are shaken already by danger, by the loss of comrades, by homesickness, mosquitoes and strangeness may be imagined. The woman he loves doesn't want to see him any more. The little children who cried when daddy went away won't be his children when he comes back. The home and security...

Already shaken by danger, homesickness,...

MORALE WRECKERS

It is every woman's duty to try to preserve the morale of the men of her family who are fighting. She should do everything she can to preserve and, when possible, to improve the situation at home. When there are difficulties that she cannot cope with, she should tell her soldier little or nothing about them. Perhaps they will clear up—in any case they can wait. Seldom can the poor fellow in a distant camp do anything about them, anyway. He has enough to contend with, struggling against the enemy, and enduring discomforts of all sorts. Letters disparaging his wife, telling of family quarrels and financial problems, do serious damage to the spirit of the front-line fighters.

ty for which he is fighting aren't either home or secure. The devastating breath of war is not only blighting his life now, at the terrible battle front, but it has destroyed everything else, too.

Grim, Vital Days Ahead.

I would like to remind these letter-writing women that we are going into grim and vital postwar days. Every woman in America will be a help or a burden to the building of the new world then—there will be no half-way. Thousands of helpless, selfish, discontented women will find themselves left out of the running, their children rebellious at the change that gives them a strange home and a new father, their new mates not inclined to be particularly considerate of the women who coldbloodedly could drop old mates during the crisis of war.

But thank God there will be other women, millions of them—women who have written nothing but encouraging and loving letters during this time; women who have planned practically for the homecoming, are saving money, are out of debt and are full of ideas for Tom's future; women who know that more than our pilgrim or pioneer mothers needed them, we need now courage, self-control, economy and foresight. It is the woman who is strong, faithful to her mate, concerned with his welfare and that of the children and able to live on her income, no matter how small, who is going to be the inspiration, the essential creator, of the new America.

Shifting Curtains Around Makes Them Last Longer

Curtains hung at windows exposed to bright light or sunshine will give out first. Sunlight causes the fabric to lose its strength. It is a good plan to make top and bottom hems of the same width and then reverse them each time they are washed or cleaned. Curtains from sunny windows can be shifted occasionally to the shady side of the house. Sheets usually wear thin first in the upper center, so reverse them from head to foot occasionally. Mend all snags promptly. Stitch together the outside edges of sheets worn thin in the middle, split them down the center and hem the edges.

More Cloth Coming Soon

The supply of yard goods for home-sewing in small towns and rural areas will soon be increased. Preference ratings will be given to merchants in these areas for the distribution of about 150,000,000 yards of cotton fabrics, including pongee, voile, sheeting 42 inches and wider, print cloths, outing flannel and gingham. This decision follows a similar order, issued during the first quarter of this year, which was aimed to correct unequal distribution of piece goods.

Heap Salad Bowls With Vitamins For Summer

Help Yourself to Vitamins: This pretty as a picture salad bowl is made simply by alternating rows of lettuce wedges and mounds of potato salad, garnished with slices of hard-cooked eggs. It's hearty enough for a main dish, even without meat.

Summer is the time to heap high the salad bowl and bring generous portions of nature's bounty of vitamins and minerals to the table.

Active summer play and strenuous work calls for big servings of health and energy producing foods. That's why the salad bowls play a major role in the menu parade.

There's another reason, too, why salads are going to be important this season. When the butcher has no meat and the cupboard yields nothing of interest to the homemaker, she can always go to her refrigerator and bring out lovely greens, juicy fruits and berries, toss them together and serve an eye-appealing salad. If more substantial salads are desired, especially for main dishes, they can be flecked with the white and gold of protein-rich eggs, unrationed, luscious bits of chicken or well chilled and subtly seasoned fish.

Vary the trimmings and change the dressing, and no salad can ever become monotonous. If oils and fats for salad dressings are scarce, put them together with sour cream, fruit juices, vinegar or cooked dressings that require little fat.

Here are two main dish salads that will go over big with the family. One stars eggs and the other chicken:

Star Deviled Eggs. (12 Eggs)

12 hard-cooked eggs
2 tablespoons salad dressing
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1½ teaspoons mustard
1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Remove shells from eggs. Cut a slice from both ends, cutting the slice at the round end deep enough to expose the yolk. Cut deep gashes into the egg white around the round end to give a saw tooth edge.

Pressing gently at the bottom, force out the yolk. Press yolk and egg white that was cut off through the sieve. Add remaining ingredients and beat until smooth. Refill shells. Garnish tops if desired.

To serve as a salad, lay on top of sprigs of watercress or other greens. Or, use as a garnish for other salad platters.

*Buffet Chicken Salad. (Serves 8)

2 cups cubed, cooked chicken
¼ cup french dressing
4 cups boiled rice, chilled

Lynn Says

Different Salad Dressings: If fruits and vegetables do not give enough variety to make salads interesting, season the dressing itself for flavor plus.

Club Dressing: To 1 cup of mayonnaise, add 1 tablespoon chopped currants, 1 tablespoon chopped raisins, 1 tablespoon chopped nuts.

Indian Dressing: ¼ cup of chow-chow to 1 cup mayonnaise. Tartar Dressing is excellent on fish salads. To 1 cup mayonnaise, add 2 tablespoons chopped sweet gherkins, 1 tablespoon capers, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley and 2 tablespoons chopped olives.

Thousand Island Dressing is easily tossed together. For a cup of mayonnaise, use ¼ cup chili sauce, 1 tablespoon green pepper and chopped stuffed olives.

Egg Dressing is lovely to look at when made by adding 1 chopped hard-cooked egg, 1 tablespoon chopped pimiento and 1 tablespoon India relish to 1 cup mayonnaise.

A bit of leftover meat? Add it to the eggs. Especially good are diced ham, tongue or dried beef.

Salt and pepper to taste
Boiled dressing or mayonnaise
Lettuce or greens
Jellied cranberry sauce
Deviled eggs

Combine chicken and french dressing. Chill about 1 hour. Meanwhile cook rice until fluffy and season well according to taste. Just before serving combine chicken, chilled rice and enough salad dressing to moisten. Season. Arrange in individual lettuce cups on platter or salad bowl. Garnish with thick slices of cranberry sauce and deviled eggs. Top with additional dressing, if desired.

There's nothing so cooling on a warm summer night than a jellied tomato salad. Although this recipe provides for a simple salad, it may be varied by adding leftover or chopped, fresh vegetables to it.

Jellied Tomato Salad. (Serves 10)

1 quart hot, stewed tomatoes
1 teaspoon salt
2 packages of lemon flavored gelatin
½ cup sliced, pickled onions or 1 teaspoon onion juice
¼ cup sliced stuffed olives
¼ cup diced green pepper
1 cup diced celery

Dissolve gelatin in hot tomatoes. Add salt and cool. When gelatin begins to congeal, add the remaining ingredients. Place in a large mold, rinsed with cold water, or in individual molds. Chill until firm. Serve on salad greens with either french dressing or mayonnaise.

A fruity salad doubles for the dessert, if so desired. This one is especially good when served with tiny cakes or finger cookies:

Ocean Breeze Salad. (Serves 6)

3 tablespoons lemon juice
2 cups diced honeydew melon
1 cup watermelon balls or slices
½ cup white grapes, split and seeded
1 cup grapefruit sections
1½ tablespoons preserved ginger
1½ tablespoons gelatin
¼ cup cold water
¼ cup sugar
3 tablespoons chopped maraschino cherries

Mix gelatin and water and let stand 5 minutes. Dissolve over hot water. Combine fruits, lemon juice, sugar and ginger. Chill thoroughly. Add gelatin and pour into a mold. Chill until firm. If it is obtainable, ½ pint whipped cream may be added to fruits before they are mixed with the gelatin.

Green, White and Gold: As picturesque as a garden in full bloom is this simple salad made by placing chilled deviled eggs on crisp sprigs of watercress. Use extra dressing if desired, and serve for luncheon or side dish at garden supper.

Your salad can be better than just "passing" if your dressings are smooth and well seasoned so they can complement the other ingredients of the salad bowl. Here are several good basic suggestions:

Cooked Dressing.

½ cup sugar
¼ cup vinegar
½ cup evaporated milk
½ teaspoon salt

Dissolve sugar in vinegar and stir until it dissolves. Beat in milk until mixture thickens. Pour over cabbage or other greens.

Sour Cream Dressing.

½ cup sour cream
¼ cup vinegar
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt

Mix ingredients in order given. Chill.

Thousand Island Dressing.

1 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons chili sauce
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons pimiento
2 tablespoons chopped sweet pickle

Mix all ingredients in order given. Serve over vegetable salads.

Tattooed Women, Imposing Burial Vaults in Okinawa

Okinawa, which Americans are now taking from the Japs, is a strange place where women tattoo the backs of their hands, where the family funeral vault is more imposing than the family dwelling, and where religion involves the worship of the spirits of the seasons and fire.

One hand is tattooed before marriage to remind the women of the sorrows of marital life; the other is tattooed after the wedding to help her, it is said, "endure the agonies of married life."

Now matter how poor, nearly every family has a stone funeral vault which has a whitewashed interior and gets much care. The Okinawans revere their ancestors. They believe that they, themselves, dwell after death as they did in life.

DOAN'S PILLS

They 'Beat Plowshares into Swords'—Workers In a Farm Implement Factory Are Turning Out One of Greatest Fighting Machines of the War

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

WHEN the completed history of our struggle with Japan finally is written, considerable attention should be given the story of how an agricultural implement parts manufacturer—whose products are used every day in every rural section of America, developed one of the most spectacular fighter vehicles of the war.

The company is Ingersoll Steel & Disc division of Borg-Warner corporation. The war weapon its engineers designed and that one of its factories manufactures is the Beach-Buster (LVT-3), the very latest development in amphibian invasion tanks.

The Beach-Buster made its combat debut at Okinawa. Its performance met with favor from high navy and marine officers—so much so that space in the history books of the future might as well be reserved now so its story may be told.

To the Japs, the amphibian tanks that have equipped our invasion forces—the LVT-1, the LVT-2, the LVT-4, and now the Beach-Buster, have proved a lethal headache. So, while the record of their wartime usefulness cannot be completed until final victory, a sidelight on their development and manufacture is in order now. It is a recital of which every American, and particularly every farmer, can be proud.

As early as 1933 the problem of designing an amphibian tractor, capable of taking relief deep into the mangrove swamps of the Florida Everglades, was assigned to Donald Roebeling, a year-around resident of Clearwater, by his father.

Young Roebeling sprang from a line of inventors, his grandfather, Col. Washington Roebeling, being the designer of the famous Brooklyn bridge. And he and his father had seen with their own eyes the devastation, human misery and helplessness that had been left in the wake of the 1933 Florida hurricane.

Roebeling knew that only a vehicle that operated equally well on land and water could do the job that was needed. For six years he experimented at Clearwater with models. He designed and tested hulls and gear ratios. And finally, the first Roebeling amphibian, the LVT-1 or Alligator, rolled from his machine shop at Clearwater.

That vehicle later was demonstrated to the navy off the Virginia coast at a time when our military forces were occupied in peacetime war maneuvers. British military officials eyed the performance of the LVT-1 with keen interest, for they were already at war.

Early in the fall of 1941, C. S. Davis, president, and Roy C. Ingersoll, vice president of Borg-Warner, were called by the navy to Washington. They agreed to study design and suggest improvements of the Roebeling amphibian tank, for even then we were close to war.

The result of that agreement was typically American. Not a marine expert but an automotive engineer, Ben A. Swennes, was charged with responsibility in the job. He began experiments and design in the Borg-Warner laboratories at Rockford, Ill. An Ingersoll factory at Kalamazoo, Mich., contracted to build 50 of the Alligators for the navy. And folks along historic Rock river, which winds through downtown Rockford, began to stay awake nights because of "that fellow Swennes'" strange goings-on.

While Swennes was applying automotive principles to a sea-going job and, as he himself now admits, "incorporating unorthodox designs that no marine engineer would waste time with," the Ingersoll company began and completed its first "am-track" contract. Meanwhile, such agricultural necessities as heat-treated spring teeth for harrows, cultivators, weedeaters and rakes continued in production. Later, Ingersoll received a contract to manufacture the LVT-2 on a design supplied by the navy. Hundreds of LVT-2s were manufactured before the often-accelerated contract was completed, ahead of schedule.

Meanwhile, Swennes had put together an amphibian tank that today, as the Beach-Buster, is reputed to incorporate a greater amount of automotive design than any marine craft that floats. It worked. But before it was presented to the navy's bureau of ships, Swennes, watching tests in Florida, was seized with an inspiration.

Returning hurriedly to Rockford he worked for 48 uninterrupted hours, emerging with the design for a ramp gate which can be raised and lowered at the rear of the "am-track." This single feature is credited with saving hundreds of lives. Using it, our invasion forces unload men, equipment, ammunition or supplies while facing the enemy. An entire tankload of material may be yanked out in a matter of moments. The importance of this is more fully realized when it is known that the Beach-Buster easily handles 10,000 pounds of cargo or 50 men fully equipped.

Danger of stalling in the face of the enemy is avoided by the tank's hydraulic transmission which "feels" for the beach, shifting automatically to the required gear ratio without attention from the driver as soon as the tracks on which it runs encounter any obstacle.

Numerous battle reports have come back to Kalamazoo, to the men and women who make the amtracks, of the prowess of their product. "Tough landings they have made. Almost impossible landings, like Tarawa, Saipan and, most recently, Iwo Jima, they have made possible." Rear Adm. C. H. Woodward told them last March when the navy returned, for permanent exhibit, the pilot "Model B" amphibian tank that Swennes had designed at Rockford.

Other facts were revealed by Admiral Woodward: Tarawa proved the LVT absolutely indispensable for successful amphibious attack; that at Saipan the LVTs were stars of the show, sliding over reefs, hitting the beach with guns blazing, plowing through the jungle; and, most amazing, that the LVTs made a surprise 125-mile sweep in a flanking movement around the southern horn of Leyte.

From Iwo Jima, Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey, commanding the fifth marine division, wrote to his friend, Roland D. Doane, Ingersoll sales manager: "Naturally the tail-gate jobs were much more useful, but all of them (LVTs) really saved our bacon in the early days of the show because they were the only vehicle that could negotiate the sand hills leading from the water's edge to the fighting zone."

"So the LVTs carried the beans and bullets directly from the ships to the front line units and carried the wounded on the return trip and they did this for some five or six days before we could get our motor transportation running."

Such reports heartened the Ingersoll workers. But production schedules were upped again and again. In the fall of 1944 additional employees were sorely needed, and Ingersoll officials tried a novel experiment.

Into such typical rural Michigan communities as Paw Paw, Augusta, Vicksburg, Schoolcraft, Decatur and Lawton—10 towns, all told, within a 30-mile radius of Kalamazoo—moved a caravan in whose success the American people had a stake.

The caravan was fashioned around a newly completed Beach-Buster. Accompanying it were navy veterans, including a navy nurse, just home from battle duties. The vets told their stories. And follow-up crews received job applications the next day from those who wanted to join Ingersoll. Many were farmers who had harvested their crops. The caravan idea rates as the spearhead that helped Beach-Buster employment rise at Ingersoll's from a peacetime 300 to more than 1,800 persons.

National recognition of the production record of these workers followed last March 26 when Vox Pop broadcast its regular weekly program from Kalamazoo, interviewed plant employees. It came again on May 21 when the Army-Navy "E" was awarded the Borg-Warner factory.

Ingersoll inaugurated another novelty with free rides on the amphibians as a reward to workers for superior attendance records. The practice interfered not at all with routine as all tanks are "battle tested" on land and one in every 50 is tested on water before they are placed in pairs on flat cars and started westward from Kalamazoo.

With the help of navy engineers, constant tests are being conducted on the amtracks and refinements that are indicated by battle performance added. The headquarters of Ben Swennes has been moved to Kalamazoo and the results of his research are proved daily on Lake, land and in swamp.

Coordinator of all this activity is R. S. ("Babe") Ingersoll, son of Roy and grandson of the late S. A. Ingersoll, founder of the company. His two uncles, Harold G. and Stephen L. Ingersoll, are directors of the Borg-Warner organization. Harold manages the Ingersoll plant at New Castle, Ind.; Stephen L. established the West Pullman works in 1929.

When the emergency of World War II arose, four Ingersoll plants—at Chicago, Chicago Heights, New Castle, Ind., and Kalamazoo, Mich., were in operation.

Those who knew him say that had S. A. Ingersoll been alive to participate he would have found abiding satisfaction in the promptness with which all four were converted from producing implements of peace to instruments of war. For here truly is a company that has beaten plowshares into swords.

rel maker, catering to the needs of fruit growers. He built and operated a canning factory.

Twenty years after the business was started, he moved it to Galesburg, Ill. It was there during World War I, supplying necessary parts for farm implements when the plant was completely destroyed by fire. Undismayed, Ingersoll workers continued their production, during a bitter winter, while new walls and roof were built around them.

Service Flag

By EDWARD GRASSFIELD
McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Features.

POLICE Lieutenant Moore tried to assume a stern expression as he looked down at the little old lady standing before him.

"You say you are an impostor and that you want to give yourself up?" he asked kindly. "Now just who was it you imposed on, Mrs. Murray?"

"On my country, Your Honor," she replied. In spite of her determined air she could not keep her voice from trembling. "I didn't mean any harm. You see, sir, I'm a widow without any children and it all started when I began to walk in the park evenings to get a little air."

"The boys in service are such fine looking young men. When I heard them laughing and talking I used to pretend that one of them was mine, especially when he would say something about writing home to Mom."

Her voice broke a little and she blinked rapidly before beginning anew. "The next thing I did was to start noticing the mailman. Every day he brings a letter from overseas to some house on the block. I know because I watch him from behind the curtain."

"I envied everyone who had a little service flag in the window until I couldn't bear it any longer. I bought one and hung it in my own window, even though I had no right to. I sit down every night and write a letter to my boy abroad. Of course I never post it because I haven't anyone to send it to, but it makes me feel as if I have."

This precinct was mentioned, that's why I came here.

She took a little lace-trimmed handkerchief from her pocketbook and dabbed at her eyes.

"Here, now!" the policeman came from behind the desk and put his arm around her. "I guess we all make believe once in a while."

"Not wrong?" She stared at him incredulously. "Why, I saw in the paper that it's wrong to pretend when it concerns your country. This precinct was mentioned, that's why I came here."

BOY IMPOSTOR JAILED
Last night police arrested George Marlin of 32 Chester street. The 18-year-old youth, an orphan, is charged with illegally wearing an army uniform and will be arraigned tomorrow morning at the 2nd precinct.

The policeman laughed. "That's different, Mrs. Murray, and even that worked out all right. At first the boy was turned down for some minor defect and he was self-conscious because he couldn't get in the army. The judge suspended sentence when he found out the boy's motive, and the army was willing to accept him for limited service."

He looked at the clipping again and whistled. "Wait a minute. This's something here I didn't see before." He turned to the attendant. "Mike, bring that boy out again. I want to speak to him."

Mrs. Murray looked up frightened. "Officer, I hope I haven't made trouble for him by coming here."

The lieutenant didn't answer but he smiled as the boy approached. "George, this is Mrs. Murray," he began by way of introduction. "She is an impostor, too, and in a sense an orphan like yourself."

The youth seemed puzzled, looking from one to the other.

"You are hereby ordered to write to her twice a week and to adopt her as your service mother. Do you agree?"

"Gosh!" George blurted out. "I'll say I agree—that is, if Mrs. Murray really wants me to. Gee, I'll be getting letters like the rest of the fellows—just as if I had folks!"

Mrs. Murray threw her arms around his neck. "Write to me quickly, George. Write as soon as you find out where you will be stationed." Then she hurried out the door.

The lieutenant noticed George's bewilderment at her quick departure. "She's in a hurry, George," he said. "She has a mighty important flag to hang up."

These Useful Chests Are Easy to Make

DOES it surprise you to think of making good-looking useful furniture at home? The secret is to start with something simple. This little chest is ideal. The block front construction of the drawers makes them as easy to put together as a box.

A chest of this kind is always useful in an odd corner of the bathroom, kitchen or a closet. But, when you have made one, you are sure to want a pair for unit combinations. The desk may be used for a dining table. Or the dressing table may have a longer top.

NOTE—Pattern 282 gives large cutting diagrams for all parts of this chest of drawers and illustrated step-by-step directions for its construction. A complete list of materials is included. To get Pattern 282, send 15 cents with name and address direct to:

"God" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon that will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 15.

The Golden Text is: "The Lord path prepared his throne in the heavens; and his kingdom ruleth over all" (Psalms 103: 19).

The citations from the Bible include the following passages:

"Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and thy dominion endureth throughout all generations"

(Psalms 103: 19).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following selections from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy: "Let us learn of the real and eternal and prepare for the reign of Spirit, the kingdom of heaven,—the reign and rule of universal harmony, which cannot be lost nor remain forever unseen" (Page 208: 20-24).

SAVE THE SPIRIT AND SAVE AMERICA

By Dr. Alfred P. Haake

(Editor's Note: Alfred P. Haake, Ph.D., recently elected Mayor of Park Ridge, Illinois, is a noted Economist, Business Consultant, Lecturer and Author.)

Recently a man asked me, "You're an economist and a business man, aren't you?" I replied "Yes." "And you're Mayor of your town, too, right?" I said, "Right." "And you learned your stuff in the practical school of hard knocks, didn't you?" I replied that I did, that there were plenty of knocks and they were hard enough to suit me. "Well then," he demanded, "where do you get this religious revival idea that you're spreading all over the place?"

I told him the story of more than ten years of effort to help correct delusions and fallacies which the American people have swallowed since the depression. I showed him how little economic logic can be so long as people prefer prejudices which they hug to their hearts.

But the real trouble with the world is that men have turned from the worship of God to the worship of Mammon. Until that is corrected, the world will never be saved.

Years Ago

10 YEARS AGO—1935

As a result of several rainy days, there was a small attendance at the performances of Hunt's circus, Monday.

About 50 children are in the Vacation School which opened Monday.

A group of Berlin singers gave an excellent concert at the Methodist Church, Tuesday evening.

Warren Blake began work on the cellar for a house on Tyler Street.

Deaths—July 3, Miss Elvira Holt, aged 79 years. July 7, Mrs. Eva B. Hastings, aged 78 years.

20 YEARS AGO—1925

The fire department was called about 5:30 p. m. July 3 for a fire on the roof of the engine room at the N. S. Stowell Co. mill. Little damage was done. It was the first time the fire department was called since July 5, 1924.

A tarva crew is working on the Bethel-Locke Mills road.

EXTENSION CHATS

Virginia Brown, H. D. A.

"What shall I use for shortening?" is the question many housewives are now asking. Following are the facts that are the equivalent of one cup of butter:

Lard, ½ cup plus ½ tsp. salt
Cottonseed oil, corn oil, salad oil, ¾ cup plus ½ tsp. salt
Margarine, 1 cup plus ½ tsp. salt
Suet-ground, ¾ cup plus ¼ tsp. salt

Drainings, bacon fat, four fifths should be used with molasses, spices to mask the flavor. Chicken fat, ¾ cup, plus ¾ tsp. salt.

With the coming of strawberries many women are also wondering how best to can these berries for good results. The following directions have proved very satisfactory.

Pick strawberries, wash in cold water, pack in fruit jars, fill with boiling hot syrup or juice and process for 5 minutes.

Now as to the syrup—
Liquor, 1 cup sugar to 2 of liquid.
Thin, 1 cup sugar to 3 of liquid.
Thick, 1 cup sugar to 4 of liquid.
Boil only until the sugar dissolves. Remove any scum.

To can with sugar substitutes, substitute up to one half of the sweet
